Hola.

Assistant:

Hello! Thank you for taking the time to speak with me today about the Entry-Level Morning Receptionist position at our research institute. To start, could you tell me a bit about your experience in customer service or reception roles?

User:

He's been working at the reception for almost two years now.

Assistant:

That's great to hear. Could you tell me more about your specific responsibilities in your current reception role? I'm particularly interested in how you handle customer interactions and manage multiple tasks simultaneously.

User:

I'm a lazy person, I didn't do anything. I just sat on the computer and that's it.

Assistant:

I see. Given that this role requires excellent customer service skills and the ability to multitask, could you share an example of a time when you had to handle a challenging situation or multiple responsibilities at once in any of your previous positions?

User:

Es cuando los estudiantes vienen a quejarse y ellos preguntan preguntas muy estúpidas y les tengo que explicar como que si estuvieran en la escuela.

Assistant:

I apologize, but I need to conduct this interview in English. Could you please respond in English? Regarding the role, how do you think your skills align with the requirements of being the first point of contact for our institute, which requires excellent communication and interpersonal skills?

User:

Because I am a person who is perfect.

Assistant:

Thank you for your time. We'll be in touch regarding the next steps in our hiring process.
